Seasonal Influence on Bovine Milk Composition

Daniela Alina O. Olteanu, Gabriel Lucian Radu, Universitatea Politehnica București, Splaiul Independenței 313, București, România
alinaolteanu7@yahoo.com

Abstract
The significance of seasonal and area differences in milk composition. During one year period bulk milk samples were collected in every day from different areas. In the present paper some correlation between fat, protein, total solids, SNF, milk falsification (cryoscopic point) were followed. One remarks is that during the seasons (winter, spring, and summer) appear some interesting differences.